

Curse @cursedsalad

6 Sep 18 · 3 tweets · cursedsalad/status/1037606785434017792

It is true that social media companies are not required to protect all speech despite 2/3 of America's conversations happening on their platforms. But it is also true that removing content like hate speech decreases overall engagement/impressions, and consequently, revenue.
(1/3)

So to say that social media companies, who are beholden to their stockholders to increase revenue, should be suppressing any kind of content on a mass scale, is simply a non sequitur. Therefore, any suppression or censorship whatsoever is purely ideologically driven. (2/3)

As such, the few Silicon Valley executives who have more jurisprudence over free speech than the Supreme Court are censoring Americans because their ideological bent is counter to the spirit of First Amendment. We must end this and designate social media as a public utility (3/3)

...